At the opening of his exhibition in Bratislava, somebody said that the package sent by the Earth's inhabitants to the distant galaxies should contain a picture or drawing by Martin Jonaš, and everybody agreed. Imagine a Jonaš painting traveling in a spaceship as a business card of the human race from the Blue Planet. Each of his paintings contains the codes of human labor, wisdom and experience. Each portion of the canvas speaks about the man tied to the field and to the crop it bears. The smell of the fields, seeds, peasants' sweat and bread would fly to the stars together with a Jonaš painting. Briefly, the message from Jonaš would be the one of the unity of man and his land, message of them being inseparable.

Possessing the Martin Jonaš Digital Monograph in the era of new communications is a sign of personal prestige and shows a refined feeling for art.
